

ARE YOU ELIGIBLE FOR A LEE AWARD?

If you are a student of Canadian Indigenous ancestry and want to stay in school, you may be eligible for a bursary.

The aim of the Lee Awards is to encourage Indigenous students to continue their education.

Each year, bursaries are given to students who:

- are of Indigenous ancestry (Status or Non-Status, Metis, or Inuit)
- attend a high school program in the Greater Toronto Area
- are committed to staying in school
- are involved in their community

HISTORY OF LEE AWARDS

The Lee Awards program for Indigenous high school students was established by the children of the late Louise and Walter Lee.

Born just after 1900, both Louise and Walter taught in Ontario high schools and practiced a quiet generosity. They believed that all human beings belong to one family.

Lee Awards Reception / Celebration

In 1989, their four children set up the Lee Awards to both honour their parents and to assist Indigenous students. Statistics show that almost 44% of Indigenous Canadians have not completed high school compared to 23% of non-Indigenous Canadians. It was the family's hope that the recognition and financial support provided by the Lee Awards would motivate young Indigenous students to complete high school.

In 2010, the Lee family asked Miziwe Biik to assume administration of the Lee Awards Program.

Critical role of Education in Reconciliation – and the four key questions to ask:

“Where do I come from, where am I going, why am I here, and most importantly, who am I?”

Hon. Justice, Senator Murray Sinclair

Recipients of the Lee Awards are selected based on a demonstrated commitment to school and the community.
